

AI-III-C-056 Carleton Farm
Rt. 40
Cumberland vicinity, Allegany Co. MD
Not Eligible

This north-facing two-story house includes a gabled section to the east and a hip-roofed section to the west. The entire building is clad in PermaStone. Asphalt shingles cover the roof and 1/1-sash windows light the building. The gable end of the two bay by five bay eastern section faces front and projects from the western section. A bay window is centered on this end. A porch covers the first story of the three bay by four bay western section of the house. Most of the porch materials appear to date from the mid 20th century.

This house appears to date from the early 20th century. As modern materials have altered the appearance of the structure, it is recommended as not eligible for the National Register of Historic Places.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

This unusually large 2 1/2 story frame house faces north. Its "L" form results from the intersection of a three bay wide, four bay deep hip-roofed block and a two bay wide, five bay deep gable roofed section. The whole is clad in perma stone and the roof is covered with slate. All windows are tall, narrow 4/4 sash except those in the projecting three-sided bay on the north facade, which are 1/1. A hipped dormer on the west slope of the main roof lights the half-story. A one-story, half-hipped porch with chamfered posts and scrollwork brackets and balustrade fills the crook of the "L", sheltering the main entrance in the easternmost bay of the main block. A two pane transom appears over the front door.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

This building is significant as an extremely large variant of a late 19th century house form in rural Maryland. Significant architectural features include the slate roof, not often seen on a building of this type, and the application of Permastone, which relates the house visually to the adjoining house (AL-III-C-054), a Colonial Revival structure built of concrete block.
